Where were you when there was money
 And my dowry was lying on the table?
 Today you are here, when there is no money,
 And my life has become odious.

Where were you when we were young
 And life was sugar-sweet?
 Today you are here, when my hair is grey,
 And my life has become odious.

Where were you when we were young
 And my heart burned with love?
 Now you are here, when my head is quite grey.
 And my hands are trembling.
